Walter Benjamin Programme

https://www.dfg.de/en/research_funding/programmes/individual/walter_benjamin/index.html

The Walter Benjamin Programme enables researchers in the postdoctoral training phase to independently conduct their own research project at a location of their choice. The project can be carried out at a research institution in Germany or abroad, with the host institution providing support for the project.

The screenshot shows the DFG (Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft) website. The header includes the DFG logo and the text 'Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft'. Below the header is a navigation bar with links: 'Research Funding', 'Funded Projects', 'DFG in Profile', and a menu icon. The main content area is titled 'Research Careers' and contains the following text: 'The German Research Foundation supports researchers in all stages of their research career. On the one hand, this is accomplished by means of funding for individuals and, on the other hand, there is room for further academic qualification in DFG-funded research projects and groups.' Below this, it states: 'The web pages pertaining to the various phases of research careers provide you with an overview of funding opportunities and further information:'. A list of links follows: 'During Studies >', 'During Doctorates >', and 'Following Completion of Doctorates >'. At the bottom, it says: 'Furthermore, the DFG awards prizes to researchers at different stages of their research careers:'. A final link 'Scientific Prizes >' is visible at the bottom of the list.

International Collaboration

https://www.dfg.de/en/research_funding/international_cooperation/international_funding/index.html

The DFG offers many different opportunities to enable researchers to participate in international cooperation. Proposals with international participation can be submitted at any time, on any topic, as long as they satisfy the funding principles. There are also specific funding opportunities offered in partnership with foreign partner organisations. The DFG also provides lots of information in the form of various databases to help researchers in other countries find out about the research landscape in Germany.

Newsroom

Would you like to learn more about the revamped Marie Skłodowska-Curie actions? Searching for bottom-up research funding? Are you a research institution/company looking for partnership?

The Marie Skłodowska-Curie actions (MSCA) provide grants for all stages of researchers' careers - be they doctoral candidates or highly experienced researchers - and encourage transnational, intersectoral and interdisciplinary mobility. The MSCA enable research-focused organisations (universities, research centres, and companies) to host talented foreign researchers and to create strategic partnerships with leading institutions worldwide.

The MSCA aim to equip researchers with the necessary skills and international experience for a successful career, either in the public or the private sector. The programme responds to the challenges sometimes faced by researchers, offering them attractive working conditions and the opportunity to move between academic and other settings.

The MSCA are open to all domains of research and innovation, from fundamental research to market take-up and innovation services. Research and innovation fields are chosen freely by the applicants (individuals and/or organisations) in a fully 'bottom-up' manner.
